DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (b) as being anticipated by Pinsky et al (US Pat: 5,469,353).

Regarding claims 1-7, Pinsky et al teaches a radiology healthcare network for providing high quality generalist and timely medical interpretations of radiological images on a national or regional basis includes a plurality of acquiring sites that anticipates the claimed invention. As Pinsky et al teaches acquiring and interpreting in national basis. There are different time zones in the US, a radiologist can be in Hawaii to acquire or interpret studies for example, when it is nighttime there, it is daylight in Washington. We also have Eastern Time, Pacific Time, and Atlantic etc...

Pinky et al teaches a method for providing interpretation of radiological images which comprises providing an administrative site coupled to a wide area network [see column 1 lines 64-67]; generating identifying information about a radiology study [see column 2 lines 1-5]; administrative site receive identifying information about the study from one of the acquiring sites over the wide area network [see column 2 lines 7-15]; determine a pathology of the study, a geographic location of the acquiring site, information about a patient age, sex, or information about an anatomy of a patient which is subject to the study [see column 2 lines 28-33]. Pinsky et al further teaches acquiring sites for acquiring radiological images and requesting radiological studies of those images [see column 3 lines 1-5]; one or more administrative sites for managing and controlling the flow and quality of images and interpretations [see column 3 lines 5-10]; acquiring sites transfer acquired radiological images as studies to the radiology healthcare network for interpretation [see column 3 lines 17-24]; appropriate interpretation resource by an administrative site on the network. The interpretation can be performed on workstations with medical image grade monitors [see column 1 lines 55-57].

Pinsky et al also teaches strategic radiology partners (SRP) that have a higher level of radiology images interpretation that interpret the radiology study and produce reports which are directed back to the appropriate acquiring site [see column 5 lines 30-35]; it is also possible with acceptable compression techniques to use voice grade switch [see column 5 lines 43-45]; board certified radiologists interpret the transmitted studies by using workstations to view the images [see column 6 lines 23-25]; after making the interpretation, the radiologist dictates a report of findings, has the dictation transcribed, reviews the transcribed report and signs the report [see column 6 lines 34-37]. The report is then sent back across the network to the acquiring site by electronic mail [see column 6 lines 38-40]; DICOM format for writing, creating, storing, receiving data, and to transmit study over the network [see column 6 lines 60-67]; image viewing equipment that includes a reading workstation capable of displaying gray scale or color radiological images on a CRT display and sent by image server [see column 12 lines 41-45]; images can include images created by CT, ultrasound images, nuclear medicine, magnetic resonance imaging [see column 1 lines 43-47].
